Summary

I have always been intrigued by the power of both museums and technology. Museums show the wonders of the past, the future, and the world to those who otherwise would be unable to access them, and technology helps educate and broaden the horizons of individuals around the world. I want to combine my interests in the future, by using video and interactive technologies to create unique museum exhibits and educational initiatives. These will help visitors make sense of a constantly changing modern world, while encouraging curiosity and new ideas. If my interests align with the goals of your organization, let's talk. You can reach me by email at jbloom730@gmail.com.
